For the historical note of the Allegheny Conference On Community Development please see the finding aid for MSS# 285.

Scope and Content Note:

The Allegheny Conference On Community Development Photographs are housed in 30 archival boxes and are arranged in these four series: Prints, Negatives, Transparencies and Oversized.

Series I: Prints (1892-1981)
The Prints Series is divided into nineteen Sub-series according to topic. The sub-series headings are, for the most, consistent with how these photographs were originally arranged by the ACCD. The sub-series are arranged alphabetically and are housed in twenty-three Archival Boxes.

Sub-Series I: Aviation (1948-ca 1955)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of two airports in the Pittsburgh Area; the Allegheny County Airport (West Mifflin, PA) and the Greater Pittsburgh Airport (Findlay Township, PA). Most of these images are of airfields and terminal buildings. For the Greater Pittsburgh Airport researchers will also find construction scenes and some interior shots. The photographs are arranged alphabetically.

Sub-Series II: Buildings (1930-1981)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of buildings, concentrating in the Golden Triangle area of the City of Pittsburgh. Most of these images are of architectural concepts & models, site demolition, construction, and completed structures. Of special note is a single folder labeled “Religious Buildings” which includes images of several Pittsburgh area churches and synagogues. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the building or by topical. When there is a topical folder heading every attempt has been made to list its content in the container list as well as on the exterior of the individual folders.

Sub-Series III: Culture (1939-1971)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of cultural events and organizations in and around Pittsburgh. Many of the images are of classroom scenes and performances. Also included are some photographs of the buildings that house these cultural programs and groups. Of special note are the building proposals for the Center for the Arts and the Lower Hill Cultural Center, which were early concepts that resulted in the building of the Civic Arena. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the group or organization.

Sub-Series IV: Education (1930-1970)
This Sub-Series is arranged into two main sections, Institutions and Job Training. The Institutions section consists of photographs of various schools, colleges and universities around the Pittsburgh Area. The images are of various campus buildings and architectural concepts of proposed buildings. Some informal student photographs may be found in the “Community College of Allegheny County” folder. The Job Training section consists largely of classroom settings for student training in specific career areas. These photographs are arranged alphabetically by the institutions name and by the name of professions represented.

Sub-Series V: Golden Triangle (1923-1977)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of the redevelopment of the Golden Triangle area of the City of Pittsburgh. This area includes the development of the Gateway Center and Point State Park. Included are the various artistic concepts of proposed redevelopment, aerial views, demolition of sites, construction of buildings and the park, and completed structures. These photographs are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Sub-Series VI: Health & Welfare (1940-1965)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of Pittsburgh area Hospitals and Medical Facilities. Included are many architectural concepts, construction, and completed buildings. The photographs are arranged in alphabetically by the name of the institution.

Sub-Series VII: Highways (1892-1968)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of roadways and bridges found in mostly in Allegheny County. Of special note is the large section of Penn-Lincoln Parkway photographs. Included are images of architectural concepts, construction, and completed roads and structures. Another significant photograph is of the Sixth Street Bridge designed by John A. Roebling. Roebling, famous for building the Brooklyn Bridge in New York City, designed in 1846 the original Smithfield Street Bridge and in 1859 the Sixth Street Bridge. Neither of the Roebling Bridges have survived in Pittsburgh. For a full account of Roebling’s work, please consult David McCullough’s book, The Great Bridge. For more information on many of bridges of Pittsburgh please consult The Bridges of Pittsburgh by Joseph White and M. W. von Bernewirtz. Both titles can be found in Library of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the roadway and bridge.

Sub-Series VIII: Historical (1893-ca 1950)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of historical buildings and images of Pennsylvania. Included are many reproductions of prints, engravings and maps from the early settlement of Pittsburgh and its surroundings. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by topic or location.

Sub-Series IX: Housing (ca 1930-1981)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of residential areas and apartment buildings in the Pittsburgh area. Included are images of redevelopment of sites (before and after), construction, and completed structures. Of special note are the photographs in the “Public Housing” folder of Gazzam & Ruch Hills, located in the Hill District, before redevelopment into public housing units. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Sub-Series X: Miscellaneous (1945-1978)
This Sub-series consists of various photographs that are arranged alphabetically by topic. Included are photographs of neighborhoods in Pittsburgh, parking facilities, social action activities and programs, and groups. Of special note are photographs of exhibits that were produced by the ACCD, the Floods that have taken place in the Pittsburgh area, and the site demolition and construction of Mellon Square in downtown Pittsburgh.

Sub-Series XI: PA Pitt Partner’s Program (1950)
This Sub-series consist of photographs of the activities of this program that the ACCD was involved. There main function seems to have been centered around the cleaning-up of the city. This program was also very involved with the development of the Parklets throughout the city. Photographs of the Parklets can be found in the Recreation Sub-series. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Sub-series XII: People (1950-ca 1959)
This Sub-series consists largely of photographs of individuals that were members of the ACCD board and staff. Included are a few group shots of the Annual Dinners, Executive Board and Governor’s Dinner. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the individual or event.

This Sub-series consists of photographs used by the ACCD in its publications. It would be beneficial to consult the Annual Reports of the ACCD, located in the vertical files of the Library of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, too see how the photographs were used. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the title of the publication.

Sub-Series XIV: Recreation (1937-1970)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of various recreational sites and activities throughout the Western Pennsylvania region and into West Virginia. Included are several folders of Pittsburgh’s Highland Park Zoo. Of special note is the many folders of Parklets built in the City of Pittsburgh through the assistance of the PA Pitt Partner’s Program of the ACCD. The Parklet photographs include many scenes of children at play, before and after shots, and dedication ceremonies. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the site.

Sub-series XV: Research (ca 1950-1960)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of various research institutions and laboratories in the Pittsburgh area. Many of the institutions represented are from the business and industry sector. Included are photographs of buildings and laboratory interiors. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the institution.

Sub-Series XVI: Smoke Control (1947-1959)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of various causes of smoke pollution in the Pittsburgh area. The ACCD was involved in the United Smoke Council, which succeeded in securing legislation to control smoke pollution. Included are photos of “Before and After” Smoke Control scenes and industrial causes. Of special note is the folder “Railroads,” which includes images of locomotives from various railroad companies. The Railroad industry was one of the greatest opponents to Smoke Control legislation. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by topic.
Sub-Series XVII: Stadiums (ca 1909-1970)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of various sports facilities in the City of Pittsburgh. Included are photographs of Exposition Park sketches and early Forbes Field scenes. Of special note are the photographs of Three Rivers Stadium which includes architectural concepts, site before redevelopment and construction. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the facility.

Sub-Series XVIII: Transportation (1930-1957)
This Sub-series consists of photographs concerning the various modes of transportation in the Pittsburgh area. Of special note are the photographs of several of the inclines that no longer exist. Also of significance are the photographs of the Pennsylvania and B & O Railroads, which were large and important operations in the Pittsburgh region. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Sub-Series XIX: Urban Redevelopment (1947-1969)
This Sub-series consists of photographs of areas that had be proposed sites for redevelopment. Not all of these sites were redeveloped. Included are photographs of demolition of property in the downtown area and the Hill District. Of significance are the concepts of The Pittsburgh Center, showing the various areas of downtown Pittsburgh slated to be redeveloped. This sub-series also includes photographs of possible redevelopment of areas outside the City of Pittsburgh as well. The photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the municipality.

Series II: Negatives (1935-1987)
This Series consist largely of images found in the prints series. The Negatives are arranged in the same format as the prints series, including the identical sub-series headings, with the exception of a Research Sub-series. Please consult the “scope and content note” for the prints when researching the negatives also. One additional sub-series, labeled Glass Plate Negatives, was added to the end of this series.

Sub-Series XIX: Glass Plate Negatives (1920)
This sub-series consists of seven glass plate negatives. They include unidentified groups, industrial workers, a railroad worker and the construction of the Bigelow Boulevard wall. The are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Series III: Transparencies (1963-1977)
This series consists of transparencies of images that fall into these previously described sub-series headings, Buildings, Culture, Golden Triangle, Miscellaneous, Recreation, Smoke Control and Transportation. The Transparencies are arranged alphabetically by topic.

This series consists of prints and negatives that are oversized. They have been separated from the collection and are be located at MSR# 285. The images fall into these previously described sub-series headings, Golden Triangle, Miscellaneous, Personnel, Publications and Smoke Control. The prints and negatives are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Provenance:
These materials came to the Historical Society in one accession.
Acc# 1994.314

Restrictions:
Reproduction of any photographs originating from the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh or the Pittsburgh Photographic Library must be arranged through the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania is prohibited from reproducing any of those images. If there is no indication of ownership other than the Allegheny Conference On Community Development then the image may be reproduced.

The Glass Plate negatives located in Box 28 are fragile and must be handled under staff supervision.

Separations: Boxes 23-28, Series II & Series III, are stored separately from the Prints. Boxes 29 & 30, Series IV, is located at MSR# 285. Several of these Oversized Prints are larger than the archival boxes and are store separately. These larger Oversized Prints are indicated on the container list.
