Making History

The Newsletter of the Senator John Heinz History Center
In Association with the Smithsonian Institution

The year 1968 represented a watershed in American history, a turning point for the nation and its people. From assassinations and conflicts, pop culture and free love, civil rights and women’s rights, the convergence of events in 1968 sent shockwaves across the country, including right here in Western Pa.

Time is running out for visitors to examine this pivotal year as part of the Senator John Heinz History Center’s new exhibition, 1968: The Year That Rocked America, presented by UPMC Health Plan. The 8,000 square foot traveling exhibition from the Minnesota History Center closes on May 12.

1968: The Year That Rocked America takes visitors on a journey through the peak of the Vietnam War, assertions of Black Power at the Olympic Games, the national launch of “Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood,” stardom for musicians Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin, and the assassinations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy.

Exhibition highlights include:

• The original set and several puppets from “Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood,” on display for the first time outside of the WQED studios.

• A 20-foot Bell UH-1H “Huey” helicopter used in the Vietnam War, the largest item ever displayed inside a History Center exhibition.

• Video footage from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.’s last public speech and items from King’s funeral at Ebenezer Baptist Church.

• Apollo 8 mission artifacts on loan from the Smithsonian’s National Air & Space Museum, along with a life-size 15-foot replica of the lunar module.

• The torch from the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City and a game-used football from Super Bowl II.

• Janis Joplin’s bellbottoms and feather boa, and other items from counterculture icons.

• Interactive stations where visitors can cast their vote in the 1968 presidential election, test their knowledge of ’60s music, or design their own psychedelic album cover.

• A special timeline which shows how the transformative events throughout the nation affected life here in Western Pa.

Admission to the exhibition, which includes access to all six floors of the History Center, is $15 for adults, $13 for seniors (age 62+), $6 for students with a valid ID and youth (age 6-17), and free for children (age 5 and under). History Center members get in free.

For additional exhibit information, including artifact photos, videos, and updated event information, please visit www.heinzhistorycenter.org. For details on upcoming exhibit-related public programs, see page 6.

The History Center partnered with several institutions to bring the 1968 exhibition to Pittsburgh, including the Minnesota History Center, the Smithsonian Institution, the Atlanta History Center, the Chicago History Museum, and the Oakland Museum of California. Additional items are on loan from the National Baseball Hall of Fame, the Pro Football Hall of Fame, and the Experience Music Project Museum.

The Pittsburgh Pipers

BY NED SCHAND, CO-DIRECTOR, WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA SPORTS MUSEUM

Forty five years ago, a Pittsburgh team brought the city its first and only professional basketball championship.

The Pittsburgh Pipers joined the fledgling American Basketball Association (ABA) for the 1967-68 season as one of 13 inaugural franchises, along with each team the Kentucky Colonels, Anahiem Amigos, and Houston Mavericks.

The ABA’s flashy style of offense play and colorful uniforms, while white and black uniforms and red and green and yellow and green and blue and orange.

During the ABA’s first season, Pipers forward Connie Hawkins led the league in scoring by averaging 36.8 points per game. The imposing 6-foot-8 Hawkins, a New York City playground legend who had professional career with the American Basketball League and then played with the Harlem Globetrotters, earned the league’s regular season and playoff Most Valuable Player honors in 1967-68.

With Hawkins as the team’s star, the Pipers posted the league’s best record during the regular season, going 54-24 for a 492 winning percentage.

After sweeping the Indiana Pacers three-games-to-one in the Eastern Division semifinals and defeating the Minnesota Muskies in the Eastern Division finals, the Pipers earned a trip to the first ABA Championship against the New Orleans Buccaneers.

The Pipers defeated the Buccaneers 122-121 in the final game—the largest margin of victory in the best-of-seven series—to earn the team’s first and only ABA Championship.

The Pipers played their home games at the Civic Arena and averaged 3,209 fans per game throughout the season. They shared their home arena with the expansion Pittsburgh Penguins, who posted a 27-34-3 record in their first NHL season in 1967-68.

Despite winning a championship with respectable crowds, the Pipers moved to Minnesota later that year before returning to Pittsburgh for the 1969-70 season. The team couldn’t replicate the on-court or off-court success from its first season and eventually changed its name to the Pittsburgh Condors.

After two lackluster seasons as the Condors, the team folded in the summer of 1972.

In Memoriam

The History Center recently lost a member of its family with the passing of Audrey Brourman. A basketball and basketball community trained person, Audrey attended the Aspen Music Institute and later helped to organize the international music festival in Idaho. Realizing her passion for fundraising, she started A.C. Brourman & Associates in 1998 as an event planning and fundraising firm and began an immediate relationship with the History Center that would last for more than 20 years. “Audrey was a history maker — her tireless efforts coupled with uncommon grace and humility helped to build the History Center into a national model for history education,” said Andy Masich, president and CEO.

She is survived by her sons, Jeff and Paul, and her families, including four grandchildren.

An endowment has been established in Audrey Brourman’s memory. To make a donation, contact Clara L. Pascoe at 412-454-6282 or cpasco@heinzhistorycenter.org.

Art of the Steelers

Exhibition recalls Pittsburgh’s football legends.

Football fans will want to rush to see Art of the Steelers, an exhibit in the History Center’s fourth floor Commemorative Gallery that features more than 50 original paintings and drawings from the collection of Art Rooney Jr., before it closes to the public later this spring. The works capture numerous Pittsburgh Steelers greats, including “The Chief” Arnie Crum, “Jimdandy” John Stallworth, Lynn Swann, Terry Bradshaw, and Franco Harris.

The exhibit is a key component in a series of History Center programs, events, and publications developed in partnership with Pennsylvania Civil War 150, the statewide initiative to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Civil War.

To learn more about upcoming Pennsylvania Civil War 150 exhibits, publications, and events, visit www.heinzhistorycenter.org/cwfwr or visit pacw150.com.

The exhibit is also featured in an upcoming traveling exhibition, “The Civil War in Pennsylvania: A Photographic History,” featuring essays written by national experts on African American life during the Civil War.

The exhibit also features images from the History Center’s new exhibit, “The Civil War in Pennsylvania: A Photographic History,” a collection of 475 rare and unpublished images that highlight the history of the Civil War on the battlefield and on the home front. The 32-page book is available for $34.95 at the History Center’s Museum Shop or online at www.heinzhistorycenter.org/store.

The Fort Pitt Museum will transport visitors back to the colonial days when it commonly overflowed with an 18th century replica cannon during special events this summer at Point State Park. Known as a “British spar-ender” for the size of the cannonball it fired, the weapon was a common sight at Fort Pitt during the French & Indian War and American Revolution. All cannon parts were built locally, from this ironwork by Jeyman Hoffman (pictored) of Hoffman’s Forge in Ambridge, Pa., to the barrel cast produced in Meadville, Pa., to the final assembly work completed by Steel Reproductions in Litigon, Pa.

For more information on Fort Pitt Museum and updates regarding the firing of the new cannon, visit www.heinzhistorycenter.org and click on the Fort Pitt Museum tab, or contact Andi Weir at 412-454-6418 or andiweir@heinzhistorycenter.org.

This summer, the History Center is organizing a few special events on Point State Park, including:

- Fire Colonial Cannon: Enjoy a themed day of living history at the Fort Pitt Museum at Point State Park, Saturdays – May 11, June 8, July 13, Aug. 10
- 15th Annual Atlatl Competition: Try your hand using the atlatl, a spear-thrower used by prehistoric hunters. The competition, which is open to all ages, genders, and skill levels, is open to competition in May. 4
- Independence Day: Enjoy a themed day of living history at the Fort Pitt Museum at Point State Park, Saturdays – May 11, June 8, July 13, Aug. 10
- One-Room School House: Learning was once a social endeavor, and this is your chance to experience a taste of the past. Visit the museum’s one-room schoolhouse and learn the history of education in Western Pennsylvania.
- Perfectly Posh Tea: Drink tea the way our ancestors did, and enjoy some delicious finger sandwiches, including a variety of sweet and savory treats, and plenty ofTea Party music. Bring a souvenir mug to take home with you.
- Family Fun: Enjoy a special tour of the site on July 6, Sept. 14, Oct. 12, and Nov. 9. For information, contact Frances Skariot at 412-454-6418 or fskariot@heinzhistorycenter.org.

The History Center’s collections will move to the Museum Conservation Center this fall. The new building will house the LEDI certified and will provide state-of-the-art storage for the History Center’s collections, including Smallhouse Foundation, Beverlynn Foundation, and the Monongahela House Hotel.

For more information about the History Center programs, events, and publications, visit the History Center online at www.heinzhistorycenter.org or call 412-454-6391. For additional information, photos, and events related to the exhibit, please visit www.heinzhistorycenter.org.

Meadowcroft Rockshelter: Meadowcroft Rockshelter and Historic Village was recently named one of the “Five Great Places to See Evidence of First Americans” by Smithsonian magazine. Located 35 miles southwest of Pittsburgh in Avella, Pa., the National Historic Landmark is set to open for the season on May 4.

Meadowcroft Rockshelter, the oldest site of human habitation in North America, features a massive, 16,000-year-old rock overhang used by the region’s earliest inhabitants for shelter, providing views deep into the lives of prehistoric hunters and gatherers. In addition to the first full-scale recreation of a Paleo-Indian Village, the museum also plans to also step back in time to Meadowcroft’s Historic Village, which carefully recreates all of the charming qualities of an Upper Ohio Valley Village from the mid-18th century. A 17th-century Indiana Village allows visitors to imagine what life was like for the Eastern Woodlands Indians. Visitors to Meadowcroft can also see a 170-ton cabin and open-spired log church which help to highlight the similarities and differences between the everyday lives of European settlers and American Indians on the Upper Ohio Valley.

More than 200 years of African American history are chronicled in this new exhibition, From Slavery to Freedom, which is presented by BNY Mellon and funded by the U.S. Department of Education Undergraduate Railroad and Educational Program.

The long-term exhibit highlights the history of the anti-slavery movement, the Underground Railroad, and the impact of 19th century activism on the modern quest for civil and human rights in Pittsburgh.

Visitors to the exhibition will immerse themselves in the evolution of the region’s African American communities by embarking on a journey that begins in 18th century Africa, crosses the Atlantic Ocean on a recolonization ship, and ends in 21st century Western Pennsylvania.

The exhibit details the unexplored history of slavery, abolition, and the modern struggle for freedom using artifacts, interactive museum actions, rare documents, and audio-visual components.

Exhibit highlights include:
- Nearly 600 manumission, indenture, and apprenticeship book pages that depict everyday life for African slaves, including images from the Allegheny Archival Collection, housed in the History Center.
- Touch-screen interactive activities that allow visitors to explore Pittsburgh’s African American history, including guided tours, a live auction, and more.
- A special “Black Friendship” section that includes the story of two African American women who were instrumental in the Civil War effort and important conflicts such as the Battle of Antietam;

Second Annual Hometown-Homegrown

Sat., June 8 • 10 a.m. – 3 p.m.
Sample an assortment of food from nearly 50 local vendors as part of the second annual “Hometown-Homegrown: A Fun & Flavorful Food Expo,” created in partnership with Good Taste Pittsburgh. Join the History Center as we explore our region’s culinary history, dance to live polka music, and host “Pittsburgh’s Best Pierogi” Contest. The event will also feature special cooking demonstrations throughout the day in the History Center’s Weisbrod Kitchen Classroom.

Healthy Heritage Cooking Series

The History Center will share traditions with local schools, one recipe at a time. This spring, students will gather in the Weisbrod Kitchen Classroom for the Healthy Heritage Cooking Series, presented by UPMC Health Plan. Local chefs will prepare meals for the students that reflect the culture of ethnic cuisine and share the health benefits of these time-honored dishes. These separate programs will focus on Italian, Syrian, and Bulgarian cuisine.

David McCullough Bridge Reception

Sun., July 7
Help us honor Pittsburgh native and Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David McCullough on Sun., July 7 when the Strip District’s 36th Street Bridge will be renamed the “David McCullough Bridge.” Following the bridge renaming ceremony, the History Center will host a special public reception for McCullough in honor of his 80th birthday.

Planned Giving at the History Center

Support the future of the History Center through your will or estate plan, with benefits for you and your heirs.

As Tax Day looms, many Americans are busy getting their financial house in order. As you review your estate plan and update your will, please consider including the History Center in your long-term plan. Your gift will support our award-winning educational programs and exhibitions for future generations.

Planned giving options include: bequests, gifts of life insurance, and donor-advised funds, such as a charitable trust, that provide income to you now and the History Center later.

Additionally, if you are age 70 1/2 or older, you can use your IRA to make a direct donation of up to $100,000 (before Dec. 31, 2020) directly to the History Center without reporting the withdrawal as taxable income. Please consult your advisors before executing a gift.

For more information, contact Natalie Taylor at 412-454-6335 or ngaylor@heinzhistorycenter.org.

Earn Tax Credits through the Pennsylvania Education Improvement Tax Credit (EITC) Program

Help your company receive valuable tax credits while simultaneously supporting the History Center’s educational programs. By giving through the Pennsylvania Educational Improvement Tax Credit (EITC) program, eligible businesses are awarded significant tax credits for their philanthropic efforts. EITC allows businesses to recover tax credits equal to 70 percent of their contribution. Tax credits are increased to 90 percent of the contribution when businesses commit to an identical donation to the History Center over two consecutive years.

For more details, please contact Natalie Taylor at 412-454-6335 or ngaylor@heinzhistorycenter.org.

Veteran Memories

Sat., May 11 • 11 a.m. – 1 p.m.
Engage in panel discussion with former veterans from major U.S. military conflicts during the past 60 years who will discuss their wartime memories, focusing on the nation’s attitudes and emotions during 1968 and throughout the Vietnam War.
