Abstract

Giuseppe Fernando Paolo (Joseph, Joe) D'Andrea (b. 1929) was born in Italy and immigrated to the United States in 1948 where he became an educator, activist, community leader and representative in numerous Italian American organizations. The Joseph D'Andrea Papers and Photographs contain personal papers, organization records, and publications that document 20th century Italian-American life in Western Pennsylvania and surrounding areas.

Historical/Biographical Note

Giuseppe Fernando Paolo (Joseph, Joe) D'Andrea was born in Roccamandolfi, Molise, Italy on November 18, 1929 to Gaetano (Guy, 1898-1983) and Candida D'Andrea (1903-2003). His father left Italy to find work in the United States after World War I; he returned to Italy and married Candida in 1929, then returned to Pittsburgh on a few occasions, and finally in 1936, where he remained. During World War II, Joseph attended a Catholic boy's school in Genzano, near Rome, the Istituto Salesiano, where he was forced to stay throughout 1943 due to the war. After his return to Roccamandolfi in 1944, he witnessed bombings and wartime destruction, losing friends and neighbors. It is during this time that his mother gave shelter to indigent soldiers coming home from campaigns in Africa and elsewhere, as well as a Jewish family, who lived in a spare room in the D'Andrea's home. The town experienced violent bombings and deprivation during this time. In December of 1947, he left Italy with his mother and brother, Lucio, on the Saturnia, arriving in the United States in 1948 where they reunited with Guy D'Andrea and moved to Stowe Township, followed by McKees Rocks, Pennsylvania. D'Andrea completed high school and learned English. While an undergrad at Duquesne University, he taught Italian at the Berlitz School in Pittsburgh. It was here that he met Gloria Bianchi and they married in 1957; they had one child, Anne.

Joseph D'Andrea received degrees from Duquesne University (B.S. in Public Administration and Foreign Languages), the University of Mexico, the University of Pittsburgh (M.Ed.), where he studied Spanish and Education, and was a recipient of a Fulbright Grant for Italian Studies. After teaching Italian for Berlitz, he became a teacher in the South Hills, followed by a position in the Moon Township school district, where he taught from 1959 until 1986. As a teacher, D'Andrea specialized in Spanish but also taught Latin and Italian. In the late 1960s he became active in state and national teaching organizations, advocating for teachers' rights and education reform in the United States and abroad. The bulk of Mr. D'Andrea's papers pertaining to his career in education are held by Robert Morris University.

He is the former president of the Pennsylvania State Education Association (1974-1976), a position in which he represented the United States at international conferences where he presented papers and conducted workshops on education reform, human rights, and political rights. Between 1978 and 1980, he was President of the Order of Italian Sons and Daughters of America (ISDA) in Pennsylvania. In 1980, D'Andrea founded the American Italian Cultural Institute (AMICI), first known as the Italian Cultural Heritage Society (prior to 1998), and he is a former chairman of the Heinz History Center's Italian American Program (1999-2003). Joseph D'Andrea who was an active figure in groups such as the Sons of Columbus, AMICI, The National Italian American Foundation (NIAF), the Italian Consulate, and ISDA.

In 1983, Joseph D'Andrea became the Honorary Vice Consul at the Italian Consulate in Pittsburgh, then Consul in 1996. As Vice Consul and Consul, Mr. D'Andrea provided assistance to Italian immigrants and Italian Americans, gave talks about Italian-American heritage, and organized community events, such as the Festa delle Belle Arti, which began in 1983, and became Festa Italia, an event that continued annually until his retirement in 1999. Since his retirement from the Consulate, Mr. D'Andrea has remained active in the Italian American community as a speaker and event organizer.

This collection chronicles D'Andrea's activities as a community leader and educator, tenure as honorary Vice Consul and Consul for the Italian Consulate in Pittsburgh (1983-1999) and, more broadly, the 20th century Italian American immigrant experience in the Western Pennsylvania area.

Scope and Content Note

The Joseph D'Andrea Papers and Photographs document 20th Century Italian-American life in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The collection includes personal papers, military and immigration documents, immigrant narratives, and community organization records from ISDA, NIAF and AMICI. The collection contains photographs, correspondence, newsprint, bound materials, and audio visual media; the contents are in both English and Italian. Additionally, there are oversized materials, which include enlarged copies of photographs and event posters.

Several boxes within the collection contain records and photographs obtained from the Italian Consulate in Pittsburgh, PA. These boxes hold military papers, passports, organizational and financial ledgers, and records from the Italian Sons and Daughters of America and other local Italian American membership-based groups that formed in the Pittsburgh area, primarily in the early 20th century, to provide insurance for immigrants and their families. The Italian Consulate's records encompass a wide variety of social activities, documenting the ways in which immigrants sought to maintain ties to their country of origin while developing new roles and traditions as citizens of the United States. Many items are in Italian, particularly those written prior to 1950 that are contained in Series II: Italian Consulate Files and Series III: Italian American Organizations and Publications; correspondence is in both English and Italian.

Audio/Visual materials in this collection consist of cassette tape recordings of Italian folk music, VHS tapes of the Festa delle Belle Arti/ Italia, the Marconi Club in Leechburg, PA, the Nativity Creche at PPG Place, and microfilm of Italian American newspapers from the early 20th century.

Series I: Personal Papers, Awards, and Research (1899-2016) comprises correspondence and papers pertaining to Joseph D'Andrea's personal life, family, and teaching career. The recipient of many awards, this series houses certificates and proclamations relating to his commendations as a teacher and community organizer. In addition, Mr. D'Andrea has pursued several research projects and delivered talks on subjects such as the Monongah Mine Disaster of 1907 and Italy and the Holocaust; reading materials, press clippings and event ephemera are available here.

Series II: Italian Consulate Files (1911-2000) contains records from the Italian Consulate in Pittsburgh. These records relate to services performed by the Italian Consulate and are comprised of correspondence, immigration documents, World War I military discharge papers, individual case files, personal information cards, passports, and event records. Individuals represented in these files lived and worked in the Western Pennsylvania area; many were veterans of World War I and were eligible for benefits from the Italian government. The Italian Consulate facilitated the payment of these benefits. Mr. D'Andrea's correspondence on behalf of the consulate pertains primarily to local events, lectures, and gatherings, such as Columbus Day and heritage festivals. There are letters with politicians and public figures, such as Mayor Richard Caliguiri, Mayor Tom Murphy, Senator John Heinz, and former Penn State football coach, Joe Paterno. Records from the Consulate make up the bulk of Series II and contain personal information about individuals, most of whom are no longer alive. This series also contains several folders of envelope fronts addressed to the Italian Consulate from Italy in the 1980s and 1990s, preserved by Mr. D'Andrea to provide geographic information about Italians contacting the consulate.

Series III: Italian American Organizations and Publications (1899-2016) contains records and correspondence from a variety of local and national Italian American fraternal and community organizations. In conjunction with the arrival of Italian immigrants to the United States, mutual aid societies and fraternal organizations formed to provide community and insurance for new and soon-to-be citizens. Societies such as Sons of Columbus, Italian Sons and Daughters of America, and other local beneficial societies, provided support for immigrants, including life insurance, job opportunities, and social gatherings. Series III contains records documenting the history and activities of several groups, primarily: American Italian Cultural Institute (AMICI), Italian Sons and Daughters of America (ISDA), and the Sons of Columbus. In addition to business records there are also many related event programs and Italian-language periodicals issued by and for the Italian American community. Included in the periodicals are clippings and publications relating to the rise of Fascism in Italy, World War II, and the death of Benito Mussolini. The Oversize Materials series (VI) contains posters and larger newsprint and facsimile copies relating to Series III.

Series IV: Media (1980-2000) encompasses multiple media formats: cassette tapes, microfilm, and VHS videos. The VHS tapes include raw and edited footage of events such as the Festa delle Belle Arti in 1985 and 1987, assembly and viewing of the PPG Precipio Crèche in 1998, and an undated Memorial Day celebration at the Marconi Club in Leechburg, PA.

Series V: Photographs (1912-2016) comprises images collected by Joseph D'Andrea that document Italian American life in Pittsburgh, including photos of his family, teaching career, Pittsburgh's Italian neighborhoods and businesses, and community events. Some photographs document D'Andrea's post-Consulate travels and activities, including a 2009 trip to Pietransieri, a town in Italy where the Nazis massacred over 100 civilians in 1943. There is .5 linear feet of mounted photograph reproductions of the Hill District, c. 1912.

Series VI: Scrapbooks and Oversized Materials (1915-2016) contains event posters, photographs, photograph reproductions, and newspapers in English and Italian. Many of the newspaper clippings from the 1940s were sent from the US by Guy D'Andrea to Joseph D'Andrea, who was going to school in Rome. Two scrapbooks from the 1930s were compiled by S.M. Cercone of McKees Rocks, PA.
