Archival Collections

Acheson family papers 1839-1877

Papers include transcripts of letters written between members of the Acheson family, primarily from those in Ireland to those who immigrated to Central Pennsylvania in the mid-19th century. The original letters were destroyed by a fire. These letters describe news of family and life in Cavetown, Ireland, as well as the emotional hardships of separation. These letters provide little documentation of the immigrant's experience in Pennsylvania. Also included is a genealogical chart of the family.
