Ateleta Beneficial Society records 1930-1997.

The Ateleta Beneficial Society Records are housed in 3 archival boxes and 2 shelf volumes. These records include minutes, financial materials, male membership, female membership, and other sundry items. The minutes include business discussions and other information that relates to the society. The recorded meeting minutes are often topics that were raised and discussed during the evening meetings. The financial materials consist of various items that include pledge forms, money receipts, deposit slips, checks and balances, membership dues, and other miscellaneous items. The membership materials are divided into male and female membership. Under male membership, it includes application forms, individual due books, social members list, and other miscellaneous items. The female membership includes different women councils of the Ateleta Beneficial Society such as the Bloomfield Ladies Council 28 and the Lanina Ladies Council 10. Other additional information in this collection falls under miscellaneous.

Beneficial Society of North Italy oral history collection, 1998.

The Beneficial Society of North Italy Oral History Collection was created to complement the acquisition of the society official records in 1998. These oral histories were meant to chronicle in a personal way the history and functions of the Beneficial Society of North Italy as well as the Ladies North Italian Lodge. Although the oral histories in this collection provide such insights, they should not be considered comprehensive reflections of these two beneficial societies. Although these interviews were conducted to help record the history of the two societies, the content of each oral history also includes a plethora of information pertaining to the Italian American experience in Pittsburgh. Consequently, this collection would also be of value to those interested in investigating Italian American history and culture in Western Pennsylvania. It is important to note that while the interviewees at times articulated specific memories in their native Italian language, knowledge of Italian is not required to understand the content of each interview. The collection also includes photographs from Ed Paraggio and Angelo Dozzi that span 1928-1943.

Beneficial Society of North Italy records 1930-1998 1964-1985 (bulk).

The Beneficial Society of Northern Italy records are housed in four archival boxes and is arranged in three series. Series have been created for membership records, financial records and founding documents and photographs. These papers include membership files, organization minutes, correspondence, membership cards and applications, and financial accounts and receipts. The dates of the collection cover nearly the entire life of the organization; however, the individual items are only a mere snapshot of one or more periods. The financial records also demonstrate the members past-times by the payment of bills for supplies and maintenance of equipment for various activities. The records communicate the centrality of the members Italian ethnicity in the fact that the minutes of each meeting were entered into the volume in both Italian and English. The Society had a loose association with the Ladies North Italian Lodge (MSS# 294) due to the fact that they represented the female equivalent of the Beneficial Society's all male membership. The lodge is also partially represented within this collection.

Boundless Lives: Italian-Americans of Western Pennsylvania oral histories 1997-c1999.

The Boundless Lives: Italian Americans of Western Pennsylvania oral histories consist of 75 oral histories and transcripts that were conducted to document the history of prominent Italian American families across Western Pennsylvania. Generally speaking, these oral history interviews revolve around the following key themes: immigration from Italy, settlement in Western Pennsylvania, cultural assimilation, and success in America. As they were conducted by a number of different interviewers, the content, length, style, and quality of these oral histories vary. Of the oral histories that comprise this collection, the following interviews are worthy of mention for their quality of their content: Eugene Barone, Luigi Caruso, Mario Farina, Angelo Gualdaroni, John Notaro, Joe DAndrea, Pietro DiPietro, Providenza Crisanti, Ralph Falbo, and A. J. Palumbo.

From Italy to Indiana County: The Italian Immigrant Experience in Indiana, Pennsylvania and Environs, 1900-1950 records, 2000-2001.

This collection consists of 11 oral history interviews collected on twelve cassette tapes. All of the tapes have corresponding transcripts. Transcripts are typewritten, but have not been edited. All of the interviews were conducted by Ciotola with first and second generation Italian Americans living in Indiana County. In general, the first segment of each interview consists of a discussion of life prior to emigration from Italy. This includes the regions where Italians lived, reasons why they left, and their experiences coming to the United States. Interviews then shift towards the discussion of how immigrants adjusted to life in Indiana County. Subjects common in many of the interviews include: coal mining, mining accidents, the Coal and Iron Police, company towns, the railroad industry, family life, leisure practices, Italian foodways, Catholicism, the La Mano Nera (Black Hand), and assimilation. Some of the Indiana County localities frequently mentioned in the interviews include the borough of Indiana, Blairsville, Mentcle, Homer City, Sagamore, Beyer, and Heilwood.
