Lon H. Colborn papers and photographs 1830-1990.

The Lon H. Colborn papers and photographs have been arranged into two series. Series I consists of materials relating to his personal life and his career as a chemistry teacher at Taylor Allderdice High School as well as his genealogical background. Boxes one and two primarily contain correspondence, publications, photographs, and notebooks. Box three contains genealogies of the Hardy and Hanna families from whom Lon Colborn is descended. Series II focuses on the Moore and Grossman families, the families of his wife, Kathleen Grossman. The boxes contain portraits of her family, news articles about various family members, and correspondence among family members. Series I: Lon H. Colborn Series I is housed in three boxes and contains letters, news articles, photographs, honors and awards, notebooks, and genealogical information on his ancestors. Series II: Moore-Grossman Family Series II is housed in four boxes and focuses on the Moore and Grossman families, his in-laws. These materials are primarily correspondence and photographs of Moore and Grossman family members.
